Garage sale find turns into $200M

Buyer stored negatives in a vault He later hired an expert to authenticate them as the work of Ansel Adams Adams is best known for his striking black-and-white photos of the American West He died in 1984 at 82

A trove of old glass negatives bought at a garage sale for $45 US have been authenticated as the lost work of famed nature photographer Ansel Adams and are worth at least $200 million, an attorney for the owner said yesterday.

A team of experts concluded after an exhaustive, six-month examination that the 65 negatives are Adams' early work, which were believed to have been destroyed in a 1937 fire at his Yosemite National Park studio, Arnold Peter said.

"These photographs are really the missing link," he said. "They really fill the void in Ansel Adams' early career."

Rick Norsigian, a construction worker and painter, said he bought the negatives 10 years ago at a Fresno, Calif., garage sale after bargaining the seller down to $45.

T.O. actor Chaykin dead at 61

Maury Chaykin, the malleable actor who established himself as a mainstay of Canadian film and TV through eccentric roles including the faded rock star hero of Whale Music, died yesterday on his 61st birthday.

The Gemini and Genie Award-winning performer died at Toronto General Hospital surrounded by family, said Chaykin's agent Paul Hemrend.

Hemrend would not elaborate on the cause of death, but friend and Whale Music director Richard Lewis said Chaykin had been battling several ailments that saw his health crest and fall over the past year.

Robert Lantos, who produced many of the films Chaykin appeared in including Whale Music and Barney's Version, called the man "an icon" and "one of the greatest character actors in the world."

"The refrain that for a great actor 'no part is too small,' must have been coined with him in mind," Lantos said.

Chaykin was born July 27, 1949, in New York to an American father and a Canadian mother before later moving to Toronto.

Other roles included a memorable turn in Dances With Wolves, as well an acerbic movie studio honcho in Entourage.

'We came up short': McGuinty on eco fee

Environmental commissioner blames retailers, not province, for backlash and confusion over tax

The Liberal government should have done more to make sure Ontario consumers were prepared for eco fees that some retailers started charging on thousand of household products July 1, Premier Dalton McGuinty admitted yesterday. Last week, the government was forced to scrap the eco fees for 90 days to retool the program, which aims to recycle or dispose of hazardous materials in everything from light bulbs and batteries to laundry detergent and household cleaners.

"It's a sound principle, it's one that we adopted as a government, but the truth is we came up short in terms of execution," McGuinty said after an unrelated event in Trenton.

Ontario's environmental commissioner issued a special report yesterday expressing fears the controversy over eco fees slapped on about 9,000 products could jeopardize "an important program."

"We failed to bring adequate oversight to Stewardship Ontario to make sure that they ... provided the best possible communications plan to Ontarians"
PREMIER DALTON MCGUINTY

The government needs to change the model so there are incentives for manufacturers to find more environmentally-friendly materials for products, said Gord Miller.

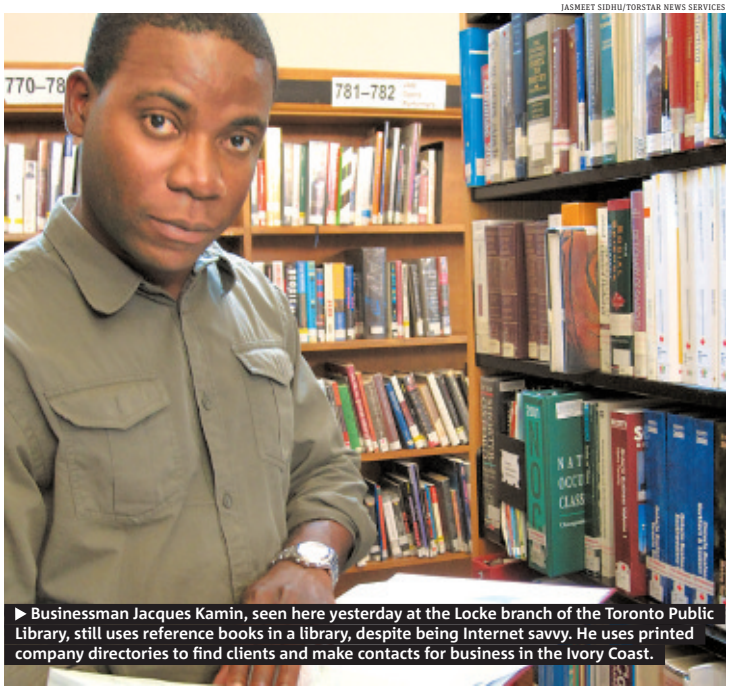
JASMEET SIDHU/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICES



▶ Businessman Jacques Kamin, seen here yesterday at the Locke branch of the Toronto Public Library, still uses reference books in a library, despite being Internet savvy. He uses printed company directories to find clients and make contacts for business in the Ivory Coast.

City libraries phasing out reference books

Many underused titles being cleared out: Librarian

It's a familiar undertaking for academics, bookworms and the occasionally curious: Furiously scanning the library shelves, lugging out a thick, dusty volume, and thumbing through the pages for that much-sought-after entry.

But the act of reaching for that almanac, encyclopedia or dictionary in a local library may soon become a thing of the past, as several Toronto libraries move to reduce their print reference collections.

Susan Caron, manager of collection development for the Toronto Public Library, says the library's physical collection of reference books has been getting smaller since many reference titles discontinue their print editions for online versions.

"It's a whole industry trend; it reflects the whole trend of people looking for more of their information online."
SUSAN CARON, TORONTO PUBLIC LIBRARY

"We're moving to more online, more electronic resources as the titles shift from print to electronic," she said.

Dana Zboch, a librarian at the Locke branch library on Yonge Street near Lawrence Avenue, added: "We've gotten rid of a lot of reference books at the community libraries. In the northern district, we've reduced our collection behind the desk because it's so expensive, and a lot of it is online."

She said the most heavily used reference books are high school textbooks and prescription drug indexes. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

John Tory warming to campaign for mayor

John Tory is poised to jump into the Toronto mayoral campaign as early as next week in the wake of encouraging internal polls and backing from political heavyweights, including former premier Mike Harris.

Tory, chairing a forum on the local economy during his vacation from his radio show, declined comment by email yesterday. But sources say he has been polling and his supporters are optimistic after two privately commissioned surveys suggested he would fare well against front-running candidates Rob Ford and George Smitherman.

"He's getting down to the short strokes" of making a decision with help from advisers, and is keen to make up his mind very soon, said one of the many politicos to whom Tory has spoken.

"I think he's leaning more yes than no ... but it's not 100 per cent. I think we'll see a final answer within 10 days," the source said.

Tory ran unsuccessfully against Mayor David Miller in 2003. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

FRED THORNHILL/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

▶ John Tory

Factors

Four things, confidants say, have John Tory leaning toward another run for the mayor's chair.

1. Massive pressure from supporters, some city councillors and people on the street.
2. Frustration that vital issues, such as efforts to lift up Toronto's 13 so-called priority neighbourhoods, aren't getting their due.
3. A healing of the sting he felt last year when he was forced to resign as Ontario PC leader.
4. A weakening of opposition from his wife to their family re-entering politics.

Members sought for bike plan

Want a bike? Take a bike.

Done with it? Leave it.

That's the idea behind a public bike-sharing program slated to launch across Toronto's downtown core next May. But first the city needs 1,000 people to commit to using the network by the end of November.

For $95, you will get 12 months of Bixi bike use.

The bikes are adjustable and designed to fit all body types. The wheels generate electricity to power the fixed-on lights.

For around $5 per day, you can pick up a bike from one of 80 downtown docking stations. When you're done, drop it off at the closest site. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Gehry saga grinds on

Demolition of world-famous architect's grandparents' home could happen this winter • Design of condos planned for site has been derided

Toronto's past and future are clashing at a downtown corner with the approaching demolition of Frank Gehry's grandparents' home.

It was in this modest mid-18th century home where Gehry watched carp swim in his grandmother's bathtub and was fascinated by their glistening scales — a memory later attributed to his sleek metallic designs, including the Guggenheim Museum in Bilbao, Spain.

The home, described as "a façade and nothing else" in a city report, was owned by a Swiss family when BSAR Group of Companies bought it in 2008.

Tarek Sobhi, a principal of the company, said their goal is to build a funky condominium that would fit into the area. The Grange Park neighbourhood is home to some of Toronto's most notable architectural designs, including Gehry's redesign of the AGO.

The city did postpone the house's demolition for a short period of time in order to search for the bathtub where the Kensington Market carp used to swim, said city Coun. Adam Vaughan. "We were hoping to find it, coat it in titanium and put it in the neighbourhood."

Instead, Sobhi says his firm will think of another way to pay tribute to Gehry's grandparents' home. This gesture may be seen as an olive branch to members of the community who have spoken out against the development.

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

'Awful'

It has taken nearly two and a half years of negotiation with the city and community to begin work on the condominium project at the site, called 12 Degrees. The design, which Frank Gehry decried as "awful" in a report in the Globe and Mail, was not meant to be a tribute to the internationally-renowned architect.

McGuinty names targeted ministries

Nearly two weeks after Ontario Provincial Police conducted raids on several offices in a provincial government building, Premier Dalton McGuinty yesterday finally confirmed which ministries were the target of the corruption probe.

The three offices that were the target of the provincial police raid are the ministries of Transportation, Economic Development and Trade, and Community and Social Services, said McGuinty.

"What I want to undertake to do here is to keep Ontarians as informed as best as I can given the information that we receive from police," McGuinty said.

"I can tell you that there is an investigation underway that affects three ministries."

It was the first confirmation from the Liberal government about exactly which ministries were the target when the Ontario Provincial Police raided the Macdonald Block, an office tower across the street from the legislature that houses 13 agencies and ministries.

The opposition parties and public sector unions have been complaining about the Liberal cabinet's silence on the police raid, which they complained left a cloud of suspicion hanging over thousands of public servants who work in the Macdonald Block.

"I would hate for this somehow to kind of tar the entire committed public service."

Course gets kids in digital dimension

They've created everything from tables to bowling balls and spaceships, but students attending a computer camp in Mississauga are doing more than putting their own stamp on a digital canvas — they're taking it to another dimension.

From Shrek Forever After to Toy Story 3 and Despicable Me, three-dimensional animated films have proven to be big business at the box office this year, as moviegoers flock to theatres and don the signature glasses to soak in the specialized visual effects of 3-D rendering.

Students enrolled in the 3-D animation summer course at the Computer Camp 4 Kids at Mississauga Secondary School are getting a taste of what goes into the process with a hands-on introduction to 3-D animation, while learning how to create their own works.

Course instructors teach students how to use Blender, an open source, cross-platform suite of tools designed for use in 3-D modelling and creation.

"It's almost like with Blender you get a block of clay, in a sense, and you're just moulding it and shifting it," said instructor Kaitlin Fantin.

SANDWICH ASSAULT

Always ask before you eat

Police in Chatham have charged a woman with assault after her boyfriend was punched twice — the first time in an alleged dispute over a sandwich.

Investigators say a man made his girlfriend a sandwich Monday evening and when she only ate half, she said he could have the other half.

A short time later, police say the woman became infuriated that the sandwich was missing and punched her boyfriend in the face.

Police say later in the night the two became involved in an unrelated argument and she punched him in the chest.

A 27-year-old Chatham woman has been charged with two counts of assault.

StatsCan chief quit over credibility gap

Voluntary census means lower quality data: Former top statistician

The country's former chief statistician says he quit his job when it became apparent his agency has suffered a hit to its credibility.

An emotional Munir Sheikh, who resigned his post last week, told a House of Commons committee that he could not stand at the helm of Statistics Canada once it was reported his agency had recommended scrapping the mandatory long-form census.

"The reason I stepped aside was because of some media stories that Statistics Canada was not just implementing the decision, but recommending it."

Those media stories arose from statements by Industry Minister Tony Clement, saying he had gone with a recommendation of StatsCan to replace the long-form census with a voluntary survey.

Clement has since clarified his comments, and repeated at the committee the decision to scrap the census was made by the federal cabinet alone.

Montreal cracks top 10 and a smile

- Just for Laughs festival is large factor in happiness
- No other Canadian city named on Lonely Planet list

PAUL CHIASSON/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ A group of children hold an Olympic torch during a parade of Olympic athletes in Montreal earlier this year.

Montrealers can smile knowing their city is considered one of the world's top 10 happiest places on a list compiled by popular travel guide, Lonely Planet.

While considerably cold, Montreal apparently has a few other attributes.

Lonely Planet says the city has several attributes — especially in the summer, when it hosts one of the world's biggest comedy festivals.

The list comes after Montreal found itself frowning over some of the headlines it generated in recent months.

There was some hockey-related vandalism during the spring; last fall, Maclean's magazine ran a cover story about the city's mayoral election with the headline, "Montreal is a corrupt, crumbling, mob-ridden disgrace."

Someone on the Huffington Post prompted a debate on the Lonely Planet website by writing: "Montreal? Ugh. That place is in a linguistic civil war."

Someone else offered a more philosophical measure of bliss: "Happiness is anywhere you happen to be — with good health, good company, and a fat wallet in your pocket."

Looking for ways to save money? Start with your bank account.

These simple saving tips can help you get the most out of your bank account.

Priscilla Yu
RBC Royal Bank®
Manager,
Personal Banking
Accounts

Everyone is looking for ways to save money. If you've done any household budgeting you know that the worst culprits for draining your resources aren't necessarily big expenditures and shopping sprees. More often the problem is the smaller expenses – the ones you don't even think about – that add up to a big tab at the end of the month. For example, people seldom think about how much they could save by changing their banking habits, or even their bank account.

Debit number-crunching

We might be more inclined to reach for our debit card rather than a credit card for daily purchases because we associate credit cards with interest payments. Besides, debit is so convenient! But if your banking plan doesn't include unlimited debit transactions, you may be paying more in service charges than you realize. Have a look at your monthly statement and compare what you're paying in fees to the cost of an account that suits your banking and purchasing habits better. For many of us, switching to an account that includes unlimited debits can help save money every month by reducing excess fees.

Living in the ATM age

ATM fees can add up too. You should always try to use your own bank's ATM whenever possible. If you don't, you could end up paying twice for each transaction – once to the bank whose machine you're using, and once to your own bank. But sometimes it's unavoidable. An account that waives ATM fees when you use another bank's ATM could save you from some of these charges. Another trick is getting cash back from retailers when you make purchases on debit.

Banking for two

Different people take different approaches to banking – some couples use a joint account for everything, and others prefer to keep their banking separate. Whichever scenario you and your partner or spouse fit into, you may be able to save on monthly fees by switching to a banking package that includes multiple accounts for a single fee.

Bundle up and save

The same principles that apply to the other bundled services in your life – your cell phone plan or your cable television package, for example – can be applied to your personal banking services. And if your current financial institution doesn't offer you discounts on bundled services and accounts, or flat-rate accounts that eliminate à la carte charges for transactions you make regularly, it might be time to consider switching banks. A bit of time spent shopping for the right bank account can lead to big savings at the end of the year.

U.S.-led armada holds drills off S. Korean coast

Four months after North Korea allegedly sunk a South Korean warship Event signals no tolerance

On the 57th anniversary of the armistice that ended the Korean War, U.S. and South Korean ships intensified high-profile military exercises yesterday that underscore rising tensions in a region yet to truly find peace.

The massive manoeuvres, called Invincible Spirit, are being conducted by an armada of South Korean and U.S. ships including the USS George Washington supercarrier in international waters off the South Korean coast.

"Since our nation's founding, the United States has relied on our armed forces to ensure our safety and security at home, and to protect lives and liberties around the globe," U.S. President Barack Obama said.

- The U.S. has said it has no intention of attacking the North.

Black's case could be put on the fast track

But experts believe the former media baron, guilty of fraud, won't be returning to Canada anytime soon

A new development in the case against Conrad Black may frustrate his efforts to return to Canada while he is free on bail awaiting an appeal of his fraud convictions — but it could also mean his case is on the fast track to a final resolution.

A U.S. appeals court has ordered written arguments from prosecution and defence lawyers in the case against the former Canadian media by Aug. 16, the same day Black is set to provide Chicago Judge Amy St. Eve with a financial affidavit that could be a determining factor in his request to leave the U.S. and travel to Toronto while on bail.

▶ Conrad Black

That written briefs have been requested suggests the case is moving forward at a significant pace and increases the likelihood that St. Eve will decide Black should stay in the U.S. in order to appear again as soon as possible, white-collar crime expert Jacob Frenkel said yesterday. "It's very likely that the judge will continue the stay in the U.S. order in effect and set another status hearing for another 30 days out," he said.

"As soon as 7th circuit reaches a decision, there's no reason for further delay for Judge St. Eve to decide what's next."

The submissions will be reviewed by a panel of three appellate circuit judges led by Judge Richard Posner.

Quebec man arrested for 10th DUI

A Quebec man has been arrested while allegedly driving drunk — for the 10th time.

Police doing a random licence plate check nabbed Daniel Gaudreault, a repeat drunk driver who had previously been banned from ever driving a car in Canada again.

The 59-year-old Chicoutimi resident was arrested July 26 and his car was seized after Saguenay police smelled alcohol in his vehicle. He was arraigned yesterday on charges of breaking his ban on driving, along with driving while impaired. He remains in detention until Aug. 10. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Const. Jean Boily said Daniel Gaudreault was given a pair of breathalyzer tests at the police station, which showed he was two times above the legal limit of .08.

GERMANS ANGERED

"SAUERLAND, RESIGN! YOU FAILED."

A memorial service will be held for the 20 people crushed to death in a mass panic at the Love Parade techno festival, German officials said yesterday, as hundreds of people lit candles, left notes and placed flowers at the site of the tragedy.

People in the western German city of Duisburg gathered to express their grief near where the victims died and 500 others were injured in a jammed tunnel that was the lone entry to the annual festival meant to celebrate peace and love.

Some cried and clung to loved ones. Many lined up to sign a condolence book placed between two red candles in the middle of the tunnel. People also expressed deep anger at city authorities, particularly Mayor Adolf Sauerland, whom they blame for failing to adequately plan for the event.

Leaked info just wrong, Hillier says

May be confusion with friendly-fire deaths the next day Says leaks could put more lives at risk

Canada's former chief of defence staff says human error is likely to blame for a leaked U.S. document that suggests four Canadian soldiers who died in Afghanistan in 2006 were killed by friendly fire.

The documents are part of a massive stack of U.S. military reports released Monday on the whistle-blower site WikiLeaks that document six years of NATO's combat mission in Afghanistan.

The four soldiers were killed Sept. 3, 2006, in a well-documented and bloody battle with a fierce Taliban force. Retired general Rick Hillier says hundreds of witnesses saw precisely what happened, and the American account is simply incorrect.

He says it's a cardinal rule among soldiers in the field to take every piece of information with a grain of salt, because it's only in the fullness of time that the true picture emerges.

Former Bosnian leader goes free

TIM IRELAND/ASSOCIATED PRESS

A British judge has thwarted an attempt to force former Bosnian leader Ejup Ganic to stand trial for war crimes in Serbia, blasting Belgrade's attempt to extradite him as abusive and politically motivated.

Ganic's release ends a five-month-long legal battle. Judge Timothy Workman said he believed the extradition proceedings "are brought and are being used for political purposes, and as such amount to the abuse of process of this court." He blocked the extradition and freed Ganic immediately.

Serbian prosecutors said they would appeal, but it was unclear how since Ganic is leaving the country.

Pickton ruling set for Friday

The Supreme Court of Canada will rule Friday on whether or not serial killer Robert Pickton deserves a new trial.

Pickton was convicted in the murders of six women in British Columbia but faces charges in the deaths of 20 others.

He appealed his second-degree murder conviction on grounds the judge made a mistake in his instructions to the jury.

But B.C. prosecutor John Gordon told the high court during arguments earlier this year that even if there were errors, they didn't warrant a new trial.

Pickton is serving a life sentence with no possibility of parole for 25 years.

Approval for youngest sailor's solo world tour

◐ May start from Portugal in two weeks ◐ Council for Child Protection wants guardianship extended

A 14-year-old Dutch sailor will be allowed to launch a risky attempt to become the youngest person to sail solo around the world, a court said yesterday, clearing her for an adventure that could begin within two weeks.

Laura Dekker said she was thrilled to hear of the Middelburg's family court's decision to lift a guardianship order imposed on Dekker last year after she said she wanted to set sail when she was still just 13.

"I was so happy I almost jumped into the water," Dekker told reporters at the harbour where her yacht is moored alongside the boat where she lives with her father.

Presiding Judge S. Kuypers said the decision and responsibility for Laura now "lies with her parents."

"It is up to them to decide whether Laura can set off on her sail trip," he said.

Dekker's plan ignited a worldwide debate on how far parents should go in supporting or encouraging their children's improbable dreams. Both of Laura's parents, who are separated, now say they support her attempt, though her mother initially was against it.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's in her blood

Dekker was born on a yacht in New Zealand waters while her parents were sailing around the world.

- She has obtained a bigger boat and equipped it with modern navigation and safety equipment.
- She has studied everything from how to stitch her own wounds to how to cope with sleep deprivation and put out fires onboard her 11.5-meter twin-mast ketch.
- She fitted the boat with new cushions and a new sail, both in red, and a new sunshade.

NUCLEAR PROGRAM

Talks to start in fall: Iran

Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad said talks with the major powers over Iran's disputed nuclear program will start in early September regardless of the conditions he set earlier last month.

The interview, aired late Monday night by the state-owned English language Press TV, is the latest in a series of announcements by Iran of its willingness to talk about nuclear issues, most likely in an effort to deflect pressure and international sanctions.

The U.S. and its allies accuse Iran of seeking to use its civilian nuclear program as a cover to develop atomic weapons. Iran has denied the charge, saying its program is intended for peaceful purposes such as energy generation. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

India continues courting Myanmar

Will give $70 million to country for railroad, agricultural projects

India welcomed the head of Myanmar's isolated military government yesterday despite international criticism and extended aid to the regime for railroad and agriculture projects, as New Delhi competes to assert its influence in the region.

India's relationship with Myanmar, considered a pariah in some quarters for its suppression of democracy and human rights, has taken on new importance because of concerns over insurgencies and drug trafficking along their shared border.

India has also grown wary of China's influence in Myanmar, and is in competition with its regional rival for access to the country's large natural gas resources.

Myanmar junta chief Than Shwe held talks with India's Prime Minister Manmohan Singh and officials of the two countries later signed agreements to combat the smuggling of arms, drugs and ammunition across their 1,650-kilometre frontier and co-operate in the fields of information, science and technology.

"There are insurgencies on both sides (of the border) and both countries need each other."
G. PARTHASARATHY, FORMER INDIAN AMBASSADOR TO MYANMAR

The two sides agreed on close co-operation between their security forces in tackling terrorism and that neither side's territory would be used for training, sanctuary and other operations by terrorist and insurgent organizations, a joint statement issued after the talks said. They would strengthen co-operation at their border in fighting insurgency, it said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Grits, Tories lose in poll

A pox on both your houses is the message Canadians are sending to both the ruling Conservatives and the opposition Liberals, a new poll suggests.

The Tories' national lead over the Liberals slipped to five points from eight, a new Canadian Press Harris Decima survey found. The Conservatives stand at 31 per cent, the Liberals 26 per cent, the NDP 18 per cent, the Greens 12 per cent and the BQ 10 per cent.

The biggest drop for the Tories was in vote-rich Ontario, where they have lost a seven-point lead to tie with the Liberals at 34 per cent.

But both parties have lost ground to the NDP in British Columbia, while all three are far behind the Bloc Québécois in Quebec. THE CANADIAN PRESS

RCMP turmoil troubles MP

Canada's public safety minister says he's troubled by reports of turmoil at the RCMP.

Vic Toews said yesterday the Mounties are carrying out a "workplace assessment" to resolve the conflict. But he wouldn't elaborate, saying the assessment relates to internal management of the force.

CBC News says as many as 10 high-ranking members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police are accusing commissioner William Elliott of arrogance and being verbally abusive, close-minded and insulting.

The CBC News network also says a group of senior managers have made their concerns about Elliott known all the way to Prime Minister Stephen Harper's office.

Toews said the government is committed to helping ensure the RCMP becomes a stronger, more effective organization.

Elliott, the force's first civilian commissioner, was appointed three years ago to overhaul the problem-plagued national institution. THE CANADIAN PRESS

BP hires U.S. exec

Former boss to be replaced by first non-British CEO Starting Oct. 1

BP's embattled chief executive officer Tony Hayward will be replaced by American Robert Dudley Oct. 1, the company said yesterday, as it reported a record quarterly loss and set aside $32.2 billion US to cover costs of the Gulf of Mexico oil spill.

BP said the decision to replace Hayward, 53, with the company's first ever non-British CEO was made by mutual agreement. In a mark of faith in its outgoing leader, BP said it planned to recommend him for a non-executive board position at its Russian joint venture and will pay him $1.6 million, a year's salary, instead of the year's notice he was entitled to.

"The BP board is deeply saddened to lose a CEO whose success over some three years in driving the performance of the company was so widely and deservedly admired," BP chairman Carl-Henric Svanberg said.

Besides permanently plugging the oil leak and cleaning up the spill and the company's image, Dudley will oversee the sale of $30 billion in assets over the next 18 months to bolster the company's finances. He will be based in London when he takes up his appointment.

Semrau's fate in judge's hands

◗ Military judge to decide severity of punishment for disgraced captain ◗ Will deliver sentence Sept. 9

It's now up to a military judge to decide if Capt. Robert Semrau gets busted down in rank with a hard slap on the wrist, or gets booted from the Canadian Forces and thrown in jail.

Lt.-Col. Jean-Guy Perron will take until Sept. 9 to mull arguments by both the prosecution and defence before delivering a sentence. Military prosecutors say Semrau should be dismissed in disgrace from the Canadian Forces and spend two years, less a day, in jail for shooting an unarmed and badly wounded Afghan enemy fighter.

But Semrau's lawyer says a reduction in rank and a severe reprimand are more fitting punishments.

Semrau — who fired two rounds into an insurgent who had been strafed by a U.S. gunship helicopter — was convicted last week of disgraceful conduct in the shooting.

A military court is hearing final arguments on sentencing.

Rogers ready for increased competition

New 4G devices coming soon • Data services drive revenue growth • $1B in revenue from Rogers cable

PAUL CHIASSON/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Nadir Mohamed

Rogers Communications Inc. felt the impact of new competition in the wireless sector, but the telecom giant still managed to either meet or beat analyst expectations with strong second-quarter growth.

"We delivered solid quarterly results despite an increasingly competitive environment in the second quarter," president and chief executive Nadir Mohamed told analysts in a conference call.

He added Rogers expects "a more challenging environment" in the last half of the year, a particularly competitive period for carriers as students subscribe to new wireless plans at the start of the school year and the holiday shopping season encourages more people to buy new phones.

Competition will be particularly fierce this year with the recent entry of various new discount carriers such as Mobilicity, Globalive's Wind Mobile and Quebecor's Videotron, which is slated to debut later this year.

Net income for the Toronto-based wireless, cable and media company was up 21 per cent from a year earlier, rising to $451 million or 78 cents per share. Revenue was also up, rising five per cent to $3.03 billion.

The company said increased competition resulted in fewer net subscriber additions to its wireless services, compared with last year.

But the wireless division did continue to grow and accounted for $1.7 billion of revenue, or more than half of the total for the entire Rogers business.

Canada's consumer confidence tanks

Gloom spreads in both Canada and U.S. over economic slowdown ▶ 2nd straight month of worry

The Conference Board says consumers' confidence in the economy fell in July for the second straight month.

The think-tank's monthly survey of consumers shows Canadians across the country were feeling less bullish — particularly in regards to jobs.

The survey shows only 20.7 per cent of those surveyed expect jobs to be more plentiful in the next six months, down 2.4 percentage points from June.

There was also a similar increase in the number of people who expect there will be fewer jobs.

The confidence reading came after Statistics Canada reported the economy created 93,000 jobs in June, far more than economists had expected.

Lost confidence

In recent weeks, both the Bank of Canada and the U.S. Federal Reserve have scaled back their future growth projections. Here are the worries:

- Consumers Skittishness among consumers could cause them to delay or cancel purchases, further depressing economic activity and production.
- Business community There's significant concern that, like in 2008, they will be sideswiped by global problems like the European debt crisis and U.S. economic weakness.
- Overall In Canada, only one-fifth of those surveyed were confident there would be more jobs available in six months than currently.

UNPLUG ... UNWIND ... AND DROP OUT

Just sayin'

PAUL SULLIVAN

I'm about to go on vacation.

You know, "vacation?" When you trade the office, the desk, the phone and high-speed Internet for the hotel room with the desk, the phone and high-speed Internet.

Vacations are quality time spent with "families" when you only check your messages 35 times a day instead of the regular 70. It's that time when you can get out on the beach or the golf course and listen to all the tweets.

There are even some birds left, too.

Wait a minute! Stop the insanity! It's time to draw a line in the sand. What better time and place than on vacation, where sand is often available.

On this vacation, I pledge to unplug and rediscover my surroundings, in this case the coast of Oregon, which has some of the most awe-inspiring sand on the planet.

It won't be easy, because wherever I go I can get to five bars and do business, 24/7. Somewhere on Earth there's a client who needs me, a deadline to be met, an email to answer, a friend request, a follower to add. The plan is to set up the Mother of All Firewalls, let nothing through and just sit there, contemplating the sand between my toes.

"Somewhere on Earth there's a client who needs me, a deadline to be met, an email to answer, a friend request, a follower to add. The plan is to set up the Mother of All Firewalls ..."

I'm a little concerned since there's another person coming — my wife — and she will probably expect me to interact with her in real time, face-to-face, and we're not talking Facebook. Relationships these days consist of two people sitting in deck chairs with devices talking to everyone they know except each other. What do we say to each other? Like OMG, who RU?

I'm hardly the only one who feels this way. Out there, on the road, at the breakfast buffet, the beach, the patio, I'm likely to encounter other fidgeting workaholics sneaking desperate furtive glances at their BlackBerrys while pretending to be interested in this seashell or that sunset. To you I say:

We're pathetic. A couple weeks a year — at least — it's a good idea to stop being important multi-tasking members of the hive and just Be. Be a husband, a dad, a wife, a daughter, a son, a (real) friend. Caution, this requires something called an attention span, with which you may not be familiar.

Cold turkey, that's my only hope. Leave the smart devices at home and take only the stupid ones, like a flip phone with a My Sharona ring tone for ordering pizza in Cannon Beach.

Now, how do you set up those "I'm away until Aug. 16" messages on email ...

Time & money continuum

Letters & Tweets

We asked: What would you rather have more of, time or money?

TORONTO. Why choose one when you can have both.

Build a "residual" income business ... within two to five years anyone can be financially free. I'm building my business so I don't need to trade my time for money until I'm 65 and have no pension when I get there. That's another 27 years of work for me.

This is going to let me enjoy time with my family and do the things we want, when we want. So there is no need to choose one when you can do some work for the next few years and build something that will pay you forever. You deserve it don't you?

RICK MORRA

HALIFAX. @newlab_tunes: I would rather have more money. I would kick-start my website, pay my parents back and live more comfortably, & donate to IWK.

TORONTO. I would like to have a little of both. I work in an office (IT) and I find I don't nearly have enough time to do my work. You can never have too much money in today's world with HST, eco fees, transit passes, bailouts, interest rates, mortgage payments — the list goes on and on.

Metro Minute with random culture

It's no secret Toronto houses a disproportionate amount of underground talent. But rarely is there an opportunity to pull that talent together across its myriad genres. Eric Chow and Jay Repovz are hoping to change that with their Random Acts of Culture initiative. Tonight's inaugural event at the Capitol Theatre will feature artist booths and vendors ranging from local authors, photographers, eco-friendly furniture makers, and in what is destined to be the most visited location, a setup from Adventures in Cheese — all to the backdrop of feature films. The best part? All proceeds go to charity. For more information, call 647-808-2420. Doors open at 7.

Bette Midler sinks her teeth into villain

NED EHRBAR

METRO WORLD NEWS IN LOS ANGELES

In Cats and Dogs: The Revenge of Kitty Galore, singer, actress and all-around entertainer Bette Midler got to sink her teeth into the titular villain, a hairless cat hell-bent on world domination. And Midler admits the desire to take over the world was pretty easy to relate to.

"I think a lot of female entertainers think about that when they start out," she says. "I did."

But as for her character turning evil after an on-the-job accident causes her fur to fall out, Midler insists that's where they differ. "Something happens to my hair in real life every day and I don't," she says with a laugh.

Dealing with hair issues is something she says she learned about early on in her career. "A long time ago when I first started in the theatre, I was in Fiddler on the Roof, and one of the girls in Fiddler was a Puerto Rican girl," Midler remembers. "The opening night, she had done something to her hair, she had tried to straighten her hair or something, and her hair fell out. Literally. And she didn't even blink. She went out, she got a piece, she slapped it on, she went out, she gave the performance of her life. And I never forgot that. From that time on, I never thought twice. I just look around, grab a piece, put it on and go."

"It's our 15th anniversary this year, and it's been fantastic. (New York Restoration Project) has been one of the great projects of my life." BETTE MIDLER

Of course, doing voice work for her latest film didn't require much concern about her hair. "It's not just isolating, it's lonely," she says of the recording sessions. "Because it's just you in a dark room with a sketch of a character or sometimes a filled-in scene, but you don't work with the other actors. It's like one long looping session, I said. It's like, 'Oh my God, ADR for days.'"

As much as her feline counterpart is determined to destroy the world, Midler has been working for more than a decade on saving it — or at least her home city.

"A couple of years ago, I teamed up with the New York City Department of Parks and Recreation to plant a million trees in New York City, and we've planted about 375,000 so far in the last two years," she says.

"I also am the founder and chairman of an organization called New York Restoration Project. We clean abandoned parks and public places, and we also own 55 community gardens where people in the community grow their own food."

Big stars set to shine at Toronto film festival

Kidman, McGregor, Knightley movies debuting at TIFF Lineup features films from around the world

Films featuring Ewan McGregor, Nicole Kidman, Marion Cotillard, Steve Coogan and Keira Knightley are set to debut at this year's Toronto International Film Festival.

In all, the festival will include 25 world premieres, 15 galas and 35 special presentations during the run between Sept. 9 to 19. Films from around the world will screened, including works from Chad, Denmark, France, Hong Kong, India, South Korea, Spain, Sweden and the United Kingdom.

Festival organizers say the slate of world premieres will include a new feature from director Robert Redford called, The Conspirator, about a woman accused of aiding her son in the assassination of President Abraham Lincoln. It stars James McAvoy and Robin Wright.

Oscar-winner Cotillard appears in Guillaume Canet's film, Little White Lies, about a group of friends who are forced to own up to the little white lies they have been telling each other.

In Rabbit Hole, Kidman teams up with Aaron Eckhart to portray a couple devastated by the loss of their son.

Other films bound for the fest include Beginners, starring Ewan McGregor and Christopher Plummer. It's about a man forced to examine his relationships when his 71-year-old father comes out of the closet.

Knightley and Carey Mulligan star in the British offering Never Let Me Go, Coogan stars in the comic road movie The Trip' directed by Michael Winterbottom, and David Schwimmer directs Clive Owen and Catherine Keener in Trust, about a family rocked by their daughter's new online friend.

"On the occasion of our 35th anniversary, we are thrilled to announce this selection of important and notable films," said festival director and CEO Piers Handling in a release.

NBC confirms Carell departure

The Office will remain in its current time slot, say execs. Star Carell says leaving was based on creating a better balance work and family life.

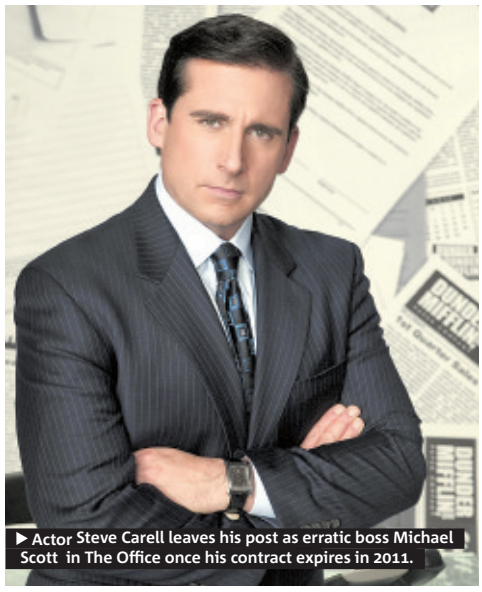
NBC may wish Steve Carell was just joking, but a network executive said The Office star has consistently told NBC he's leaving after this coming season.

In the network's first acknowledgment of Carell's plans, NBC Primetime Entertainment President Angela Bromstad said Monday the actor's seven-year run as erratic Dunder Mifflin boss Michael Scott will end when his contract expires in 2011. But Bromstad said the show will go on.

"We've been lucky to have had him as long as we've had. These things happen when you have such a major movie star in a show," she said.

In an affirmation of NBC's faith in a post-Carell The Office, Bromstad said the sitcom will remain in its 9 p.m. EDT Thursday time slot. It's the linchpin of NBC's schedule on a key TV night of advertising revenue.

"Not to diminish the departure of Steve, because that will impact the show, but we have tremendous faith in the writers and actors to keep it alive," Bromstad said.



▶ Actor Steve Carell leaves his post as erratic boss Michael Scott in The Office once his contract expires in 2011.

Carell, 46, who's become a busy big-screen actor during his Office tenure, has said in interviews he plans to leave the series to better balance his work and family life. He's married with two children.

Carell voices the lead character in the new animated comedy Despicable Me and stars with Paul Rudd in Dinner for Schmucks, out this week. His other film credits include Date Night and The 40-Year-Old Virgin.

The door is open if he wants to make return visits to the show, Bromstad said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Angie sings Papa Brad's lofty praises

In addition to being impossibly handsome, wealthy, talented and famous, Pitt is also a 'wonderful father'

Actress Angelina Jolie, in Tokyo for the weekend opening of action thriller Salt, brushed off rumours about her shaky relations with Brad Pitt.

"They played with fake blood, and they found mommy very strange in her different hair," she said.

Last week, Pitt and Jolie accepted undisclosed damages to settle a privacy claim against a British tabloid that had reported in January that they were planning to split.

THE CARIBBEAN ISLAND OF ST. LUCIA OPTIONS, BUT ITS REAL APPEAL IS TH ABSOLUTELY N

PAUL BALDWIN
TRAVEL@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN LONDON

"St Lucia is simply one of the most perfect places on earth to do nothing."

Sometimes, if you listen very closely, you can hear absolutely nothing.

It's a perfect soundbite, and I'm probably not the first to hear it, but Anthony Bowen, president of the St. Lucia Hotel and Tourism Association, makes a perfect point.

St. Lucia, a tiny volcanic outcrop in the eastern Caribbean just 22 km wide, specializes in calm.

It can be a dramatically beautiful place. Its volcanic heritage provides sharp topography (most famously in the Pitons, two towering shards of lava punched through the earth's crust) but elsewhere it is softened by acres and acres of banana plantations.

And of course the sea is ever-present — the Atlantic on one side and the Caribbean on the other — both wonderfully adept at that soft lapping which is nature's own Valium.

St. Lucia is simply one of the most perfect places on earth to do nothing.

As he shows me around one of the island's success stories the Windjammer Landing resort (windjammer-landing.com), where he is also Managing Director

"In the first world you've have forgotten the art of relaxing," Bowen said.

"You come to St. Lucia and you're reminded of the primordial need to kick back and do nothing."

Two decades ago the island's politicians, particularly three-time Prime Minister Sir John Compton, became acutely aware of the need to shift St. Lucia's commercial emphasis from agriculture to tourism.

And Windjammer was one of a new breed of St. Lucian resorts designed to accommodate the era of relatively cheap international travel.

It has just celebrated its 20th birthday.

It is a stunning development. The whitewashed, red-roofed villas, with their private pools, and hot-tubs lend a Mediterranean feel, but the tropical backdrop and white sands and cobalt waters of Labrelotte Bay are pure Caribbean.

It is Nirvana for anyone looking to stop the world for a couple of weeks.

That is not to say there aren't things to do. The resort and the island offer an extensive program from

And, don't miss the islanders' own entertainment — the Friday night "jump up." I joined one at Gros Islet where the entire town seemed to have turned-out to set up temporary sound systems and even more temporary bars selling the island's famous rum and the dancing goes on pretty much until dawn.

But that, with a little limbo thrown-in, is about as strenuous as it gets.

As Anthony says: "You won't find a sweeter people than the St. Lucians, or a more relaxed people.

"You eat when you're hungry, sleep when you're tired, play when you're not!

"As long as St Lucia Windjammer can keep offering that then people will feel they have really got something valuable from their stay."

THE SIMPLICITY OF THE ISLAND

It is the Caribbean as it used to be. There is very little concrete and you can still sail into the bay and get that Robinson Crusoe feeling.

THERE'S AN AWFUL LOT TO DO

The island may sometimes appear to be asleep but there is so much to see and do. And you can set your own pace.

FAMILY

You'll find this is an island which loves family and loves children. When a St. Lucian asks how you are, they really mean it. We haven't had tourism long enough to become cynical.

Teardrop Island is all about smiles

The island of Sri Lanka in the Indian Ocean has had more than its fair share of troubles. But with peace and post-tsunami construction going ahead this beautiful little nation has a bright future...

PAUL BALDWIN
TRAVEL@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN LONDON

▶ Unawatuna: So pretty it's almost a cliche

The so-called Teardrop Island of Sri Lanka has more reasons to shed tears than most.

A quarter century of civil war left countless dead and 300,000 displaced, then in 2004 a massive earthquake in the Indian Ocean sparked a tsunami which claimed 40,000 Sri Lankan lives and left another two million displaced.

But the war is over and the rebuilding has begun.

And the nation is fighting, and winning a new battle to bring back tourists in large numbers.

Sri Lanka of course has an ace card. It is staggeringly beautiful.

The New York Times has already named it the number one must-go destination of 2010 and it's combination of lush, tropical fauna, fascinating history, and breath-taking beaches is very hard to beat. And arguably the best beach, and certainly the most famous, is Unawatuna.

Sri Lanka

- Human population: 19.4 million
- Snake population: Lots! Most Sri Lankans don't kill snakes but say that if you talk to them politely they go away
- Languages: Sinhala, Tamil, English

Unawatuna is so pretty it's almost a cliché.

Seemingly endless soft pink sands are gently lapped by perfect turquoise waters as the occasional sun-bather relaxes in a hammock slung between two palms.

Little bits of it can get busy, but for the most part Unawatuna, a good kilometre from the coast road, has a classic mellow traveller vibe and is populated by the young and the beautiful.

Since the 2004 tsunami the cafes have returned, most low-rise and in keeping with the hippy-ish feel, with the occasional eyesore which leaves you wondering how planning permission was ever granted. But this aside, it's easy to understand how Unawatuna repeatedly appears in lists of the world's best beaches.

The beach bars offer food, usually fish and shellfish with a mountain of rice, at very reasonable prices, usually around $10 for lunch.

The calming peace that only a sun lounger and a airport novel can bring is really the main attraction at Unawatuna but for the easily distracted there is great diving.

Girls who get dirty

Cyclist Sara Burdon loved mountain biking but hated the testosterone-fuelled culture which when with it. So she set up women-only training vacations in Morzine. Better cycling, better saunas and better gossip ...

SUSAN GREENWOOD
TRAVEL@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN LONDON

Morzine, in the French Portes du Soleil area, is the hub around which European mountain biking revolves. There are chairlifts to carry bikes uphill, 3,300 metre tracks descending 500 vertical feet, 12 resorts to ride in and numerous bars where muddy floorboards are accepted as standard. What it doesn't have is a great deal of women, leading to its nickname "Manzine."

"I was just bored of trying to keep up with my husband and his mates," says Sara Burdon, the creator of Dirtgirls and owner of Flow MTB holidays. "And the conversation was pretty rubbish too. I also wanted some skills tuition to help me progress faster. But when I searched for women's courses, the only ones that were coming up were in Canada."

▶ Super Suze: Our reporter takes to the air.

So she called in some professional riders to act as coaches, provided a chalet complete with sauna and food, and Dirtgirls was born.

The sheer scale of the Portes du Soleil, which sits in the shadow of Mont Blanc and which marks out its bike runs from green to black, meant our coaches Norco pro Fionn Griffiths and Maxxis rider Jo Petterson had the pick of the terrain for our lessons. The week started with cornering instruction and ended with jumping. Landing, apparently, comes with practice.

The lessons came thick and fast: rain does not stop, weight distribution is an essential skill, don't brake on corners, keep your elbows out (but don't hit trees) and definitely don't dally or you'll lose it. After ploughing down the difficult single track full of raised corners and sharp descents into Chatel, we stopped off at Chez Babette — an atmospheric mountain restaurant full of fairy lights and lace. With Dirtgirls, you get all of the action but none of the testosterone.

BRILLIANT IDEA

Brighten your days in colourful Nassau

More than half of Bahamians call Nassau home, but there's still room for you. Whether you're alone or with the one you love, with kids in tow or business-bound, the once-tiny port city is ready and waiting. And at a mere 16 km east of Lynden Pindling International Airport, this Caribbean hotspot is but a direct flight and short drive away.

GET UP

As the nation's capital, largest city and chief commercial centre, Nassau's bustle contrasts perfectly with the peaceful beaches and beautiful vistas for which The Bahamas are famed. It is a place of vibrant sound, from the unique mix of British, African and West Indian speech that makes up Bahamian English to the traditional blues and spiritual music that still pulses through the streets. Nassau's foremost festival, Junkanoo, brings sight and sound together with brightly coloured parade of dancers, moving to the rhythm of drums, whistles and even cowbells.

GET BUSY

Want to spend some energy (and cash) of your own? Nassau's a shopaholic's second home, boasting a downtown full of shops and vendors selling hats, mats, baskets, beads and thousands more items. Barter well, and you'll be flush for a trip to Atlantis Casino, the largest in the Caribbean, with 880 slot machines blinking, whirring and (hopefully) paying all night long. If you prefer a different sort of risk, Nassau's also your gateway to some of the world's finest fishing, from light-tackle adventures via charter boat to the promise deep-sea battles against the likes of sailfish and the mighty blue marlin.

GET SATISFIED

With a full day of shopping, sport and sun behind you, it's time to reward yourself with some of Nassau's top cuisine: a spicy blend of British, Spanish, West Indian and North American fare, each with its own take on the freshest seafood and tropical fruits you've ever tasted. When your meal's finally done, there's still the city's nightlife: an experience that's just as family friendly—or as spicy—as you want it to be.

GET MARRIED

With its exquisite colour and semi-tropical heat, Nassau is a logical wedding and honeymoon destination. Thousands of couples come to this city to wed, whether quietly on the beach at sunset or in ceremonies made lush by the city's music, fresh fusion cuisine and abundance of photo opps. Many of Nassau's hotels offer wedding packages designed to make your stressful wedding day as blissful as a warm breeze.

Of course, you still need to plan ahead. Couples must arrive in the Bahamas at least 24 hours before being wed, and provide birth certificates and a notarized affidavit.

A Croatian cracker

ONLY HAVE ONE DAY? THE ONE-TIME ISLAND OF ROVINJ COMBINES 360 DEGREE SEA-VIEWS WITH ENDLESSLY FASCINATING LITTLE SIDESTREETS, HISTORY, AND SOME OF THE BEST FOOD IN THE COUNTRY.

Where I'd wake up

Hotel Monte Mullini

montemulinihotel.com

Rovinj's first five star hotel is breath-taking. Beautifully designed into the hillside, fabulously light and airy, big rooms, and views of the bay everywhere you look. Impeccable service, great restaurant and extensive wine list with some Croatian gems. Superb.

Where I'd lunch

D. TALAJIC

Monte

monte.hr

Footsteps away from the Cathedral awaits this funky and informal but very high calibre restaurant. Expect the freshest foods from Rovinj's market and the freshest fish form Rovinj's sea or just leave yourself in the hands of gaffers Tjitske and Danijel Djekic.

Where I'd have dinner

Enoteca Al Gastaldo

Iza Kasarne 14. 052/814-109.

This family-run corner restaurant, on Iza Kasarne, specialises in high-quality shellfish, sole and lobster dishes which aren't cheap but are superb. Failing that try any of the equally decent seafront places which make up for their minor cordon bleu failings with perfect sunsets.

Spend the morning

Cathedral of St Euphemia

Garibaldijeva 1

The imposing early 18th century tower is the centrepiece of this low-rise town, and a great reference point. Religious relics fans will love the remains of St. Euphemia, a virgin fed to the lions before her bones miraculously floated to Rovinj.

Spend the afternoon

FLICKR CC ZHAFFSKY

Hit the beach

There are a number of beaches around Rovinj. All are pretty, most are rocky. It's annoying at first but take a pair of flip-flops and the sea is so perfectly warm and the surroundings so stunning that you soon get used to it. If you're a purist, Cuvi beach, to the west, actually has a modicum of sand.

How I'd spend the night

The Monvi Centre

Something like a clubbing theme park this, with all the grooviest bars and dancefloors all in one place. Music runs from serious dance, to punk and rock, to Croatian pop and folk. The centrepiece is the Amfiteatar and pool bar, which hosts major gigs.

Bored of squinting at Angelina Jolie on a teeny 757 video screen? Then take a pair of these amazing video specs onto the plane and you have the equivalent of an on-board 63" cinema screen. The Wrap 920's are the most advanced video eyewear available and allow you to watch 2-D or 3-D video and play games by simply attaching to your iPod, Nokia or laptop. They are fully adjustable and you can even wear then over prescription lenses. A built in 3-D head movement tracker adds an amazing new dimension to gaming too. METRO

ULTRASUN SPORTS SPF30 ONCE-A-DAY SUNCREAM

$40 for 150ml, sun-togs.co.uk

Amazing no-one thought of this before. A high-protection suncream you need only apply once every day, now that is the appliance of science. And it works. No more reaching around in your bag every 30 minutes worrying you are about to burn. It's also non-greasy, fragrance-free, and not tested on animals. You should reapply after swimming however to be on the safe side. METRO

The acidity and sweetness of the beer simply works wonders with the flavour and texture of the chicken

Ingredients :
- 2 boneless, skinless chicken breasts
- 1 bottle (341 ml) pale ale beer
- 1 1/2 cups broccoli slaw
- 1/4 cup mayonnaise
- 2 tbsp sweet relish
- 1/4 cup Dijon mustard
- 2 tbsp honey
- 1/3 cup slivered almonds
- 1 cup panko (Japanese-style) breadcrumbs
- 1 tsp garlic powder
- 3/4 tsp salt
- 3/4 tsp ground black pepper
- 1 egg
- 2 tbsp butter
- 4 sesame seed hamburger buns

Preparation:

1 One at a time, slice each chicken breast horizontally through the centre to form 2 thin halves.

2 In a medium bowl, combine beer and chicken. Refrigerate for 30 minutes.

3 In a small bowl, combine slaw, mayonnaise and relish. Mix well, then refrigerate until needed.

4 In a small bowl or cup, whisk together mustard and honey. Set aside.

5 Meanwhile, in a food processor, pulse almonds until coarsely ground. Transfer to a wide, shallow bowl. Add panko, garlic powder, salt and pepper, mixing to combine.

6 When chicken is ready remove it from beer and pat dry with paper towels. Whisk egg in a wide, shallow bowl. One at a time, dredge each chicken cutlet through egg, then through breadcrumb blend.

7 In a large skillet over medium-high, melt butter. Working in batches and adding more butter as necessary, add chicken and cook for 4 to 5 minutes per side, or until cooked through.

8 To assemble sandwiches, layer a quarter of the slaw mixture over the bottom half of each bun. Top with a chicken cutlet. Spread a generous amount of the mustard over the top half of the bun, then place over chicken.

Superfood: Chili Peppers

It's hot stuff — not only when you eat it, but for your health too.

Chili peppers contain the powerful phytochemical capsaicin and the hotter the pepper, the more capaiscin it will contain. Capsaicin helps fight inflammation (ironically) as it helps prohibit Substance P, a neuropeptide linked to inflammation. Chilis also help prevent sinutitis and relieve congestion. When consumed the burning heat will stimulate secretions in the nose, helping to clear out mucus.

Varieties of chilli peppers such as Cayenne have been shown to reduce blood cholesterol. Its bright redish coloring indicates high levels of beta-carotene or Pro Vitamin A, which plays an essential role in boosting the immune system.

Blackberries and iPhones. More like Crackberries and i-can't-stop-playing-with-my-Phones. Addictive, efficient and, at times, an over-used substitute for good old fashion talking.

According to a recent survey by textPlus, a texting app, 11 per cent of respondents felt it was appropriate to ask for a raise via texting, while 32 per cent think it's okay to let their bosses know they're taking a sick day by typing it on their mobile.

According to Dr. James Norrie, associate dean and professor at the Ted Rogers School of Management at Ryerson University in Toronto, there's a time and a place for such technology.

"(With) high stakes communication, you should try to be using a high engagement communication method (like phone or face-to-face)."
DR. JAMES NORRIE

"(With) any high stakes communication, you should try to be using a high engagement communication method," he says, such as the telephone or a face-to-face meeting. He says once certain factors are eliminated from the message, like tone or facial expression, there becomes a disconnect between the content and the context.

A 31-year old director's assistant in New York — who wishes to remain anonymous — knows all too well about that disconnect. Because of her line of work, texting is an essential part of the job, but can sometimes create confusion. For example, the meaning in the limited number of words used can get lost in the airwaves. She recalls one episode when she received a vague message from her boss asking her to send a car.

"I had no idea where he was, where he wanted to go, etc.," she says. "I tried to call him but he didn't answer so I texted him a bunch of questions and when I received one word answers, it was hard to tell if he was annoyed with me or just annoyed he was stuck in the rain somewhere!"

Texting no-no's

Eleven per cent of college kids and recent grads think it's okay to ask for a raise via text message while 32 per cent think it's okay to call in sick and 11 per cent think it's alright to quit their job via text.

- Here are some other common mistakes people make using text messaging.
- They respond to quickly. According to Norrie, texting is a rushed style of communication and the way it's approached varies depending on the setting. For example, the quality of a response will differ when sent from a desk than while walking to the subway.
- They ignore the relationship quotient, meaning there is more to a conversation than just the content.
- People reply in the same medium if the message is misunderstood. If you don't understand the content or context of the message, call.
- They don't use good judgement. The higher stakes the content, the more engaging the communication should be.
- They don't ask their boss what is appropriate for their specific job.

KITCHEN SINK CONTRACTS FAIL

Workplace Law

DANIEL LUBLIN
EMPLOYMENT LAWYER WITH WHITTEN & LUBLIN LLP
DAN@TORONTO-EMPLOYMENTLAWYER.COM

▶ When employers draft employment contracts, there are a great many things that can be overlooked when it comes to the law.

Employers often take a kitchen sink approach to drafting employment contracts. I've written about certain things to look out for in prior columns, but here's other issues that employees should consider.

Probationary periods
Unless a contract provides for it, probation does not exist. Further, it is not enough to refer to an employee as "probationary." The contract must state that the employee can be fired for any reason, without pay or notice, during the probationary period. Otherwise, don't refer to probation at all.

Legal advice:
In one recent Alberta case the court refused to uphold a contract because there was an implication that had the employee not signed it, she would have lost her job. Employees should be given time to seek legal advice and an opportunity to negotiate terms.

Prior tenure
Upon a merger or acquisition, prior tenure is not simply erased — it continues, unless a contract states otherwise. In one of my cases, the employer argues that it is not responsible for the severance owed to a long-term employee because much of his tenure was with a predecessor. However, because the contract was silent, it is wrong.

Severance provisions
If a contract clearly permits termination upon payment of only statutory requirements, there is no right to severance, no matter how long or meritorious the employee's tenure. There is only a right to get what the contract says.

Reference to policy manual
For a policy manual to form a "term" of employment, it is not enough to refer to the existence of the company's manual in the contract. The manual must be attached to the contract, and the contract must confirm that the employee has read the manual and accepts those terms. For example, in another one of my cases, the employer states that a clause in its policy manual formed an important term of my client's job. If this were true, they why did they not put that into their contract?

Book review

I (heart) Money
Author: David Campbell Lester
Publisher: DCL Capital Press
Price: $24.99

Money is a curious thing. The very essence of its purpose is to drive commerce, meaning, it's there to help you buy that thing you love. It is no wonder then that we have an ingrained ability to spend rather than save. Financial coach and author David Campbell Lester suggests in his book I (heart) Money, that we need to take a different approach to managing our money: Loving it rather than just splurging as soon as you're paid. According to Lester, how you approach money should start with how you respect it, even how you carry it. "Do you keep it all bundled up in your pants or wallet? Do you go commando (not carry an at all)?" Lester's book provides some key insight to managing your money, also pointing out that having a healthy relationship with money will trickle down into having healthy personal relationships. Look back at any first date, he says, the first two questions out of someone's mouth are 'where do you live?' (Translation: What kind of real estate can you afford?) and 'what do you do?' (Translation: How much money do you make?). If you find someone who truly loves their money and is in control of it, you can be confident that they are in control of their life, at least in the author's view.

Cowboys rookie says he never wanted to make waves

Dallas Cowboys receiver Dez Bryant says he never expected his refusal to carry Roy Williams' shoulder pads to become such a big issue. And the Cowboys' first-round pick said he didn't know that rookies carrying the pads of veterans after practice was a long-standing ritual. Bryant said he told Williams that if he had known the situation was going to turn out like this, the rookie would have carried all of Williams' equipment. Bryant added that he's trying to do the right things.

Bills coach gets down to business

Gailey removes TVs from weight room, seeks to overhaul team with 10-year playoff drought

To drive his point home, Gailey had the dozen or so big-screen TVs removed from the walls of the weight room. He considered them a distraction in what should be a place of work — not a cosy suburban health club spa.

"We want to make sure that we understand that when we walk into this facility it's all work," Gailey said. "That's a workplace. It's not a place to watch TV. So that was my message: It's business."

It was also not lost on the coach that a mental and cultural overhaul was in order in Buffalo. This was, after all, a team that's done little to earn life's luxuries. The Bills have spent much of the past decade muddling through mediocrity, going 10 straight years of missing the playoffs and with only one winning season during that stretch.

"We've got something to accomplish," he said. "We've not been where we've needed to be in the last few years. And we've got to get back there. And I only know one way to accomplish that, and that's through hard work."

After a little more than a month off since the end of minicamps, the work for the Bills begins in earnest tomorrow when the team opens training camp at St. John Fisher College in suburban Rochester, N.Y. It will mark the start of an intensive month-long stretch during which Gailey will have numerous major decisions to make to give his team shape and identity in leading up to the regular-season opener against Miami Sept. 12.

There's a starting quarterback to be named after Trent Edwards and Ryan Fitzpatrick, who split the starting duties last year, and third-stringer Brian Brohm equally shared practice time with the first-team during minicamps. Gailey won't provide a timetable for when he will name his starter, but will open camp by establishing what he calls "a pecking order" between the three.

Yao talks about ending his basketball career

Houston Rockets centre Yao Ming is pondering quitting basketball if he doesn't fully recover from his lingering foot injury next season.

In wide-ranging comments to Chinese state media yesterday, Yao sounded far from optimistic about his future and also made a rare criticism of China's national basketball program.

"If the foot injury does not heal next season, I might choose to call it quits," Yao said.

Yao missed last season following foot surgery, but is set to return to the Rockets after deciding not to opt out of the final year of his contract.

Though he has said his recovery was going well, the Rockets have signed seven-foot veteran Brad Miller to share the work at centre. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sports in brief

Ponikarovsky lands in L.A.

NHL. The Los Angeles Kings signed left-winger Alexei Ponikarovsky to a one-year contract yesterday after losing Alexander Frolov to the New York Rangers and falling short in their pursuit of Ilya Kovalchuk.

The Kings gave a $3-million US deal to Ponikarovsky, who scored 21 goals last season with Toronto and Pittsburgh.

Maradona out as coach

SOCCER. Diego Maradona is no longer the coach of Argentina.

The Argentine Football Association said yesterday it would not renew Maradona's contract, ending his erratic 21-month stint in charge of the national team. The AFA had offered him a four-year contract to continue through to the 2014 World Cup, but Maradona said he would only stay if his entire staff remained.

One down, one to go

- Toronto FC beats Motagua in first leg of Champions League qualifier
- Draw next week in Honduras would be enough to advance to group stage

CHRIS YOUNG/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Toronto FC's Chad Barrett celebrates scoring his team's only goal last night.

Toronto FC played some of its most inspired soccer of the season last night, building on early some momentum to earn a 1-0 win over its Honduran visitors in the first leg of a CONCACAF Champions League qualifier.

Dwayne De Rosario was again a maestro in the midfield, earning an assist on Chad Barrett's first-half goal while creating several chances of his own against Club Deportivo Motagua at BMO Field. Toronto should have come away with more, but its play was enough to send the crowd of 18,891 home satisfied.

MOTAGUA	TFC
0	1

Toronto earned an invitation to the tournament with its successful defence of the Nutrilite Canadian Championship in May. The CONCACAF Champions League — comprised of North American, Central American and Caribbean teams — takes part in three stages, and sends its champion to compete in the FIFA Club World Cup.

A win or a draw in the second leg next week would see the Canadian side into the competition's group stage.

Toronto is set to fly to Honduras from Kansas City following its league game against the Wizards on July 31.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

On the attack

- Toronto coach Predrag (Preki) Radosavljevic selected a squad filled with regulars, and he appeared to send them onto the field with orders to attack.
- Forward O'Brian White was nearly the first to crack the scoresheet in the 19th minute, but was thwarted with a last-second deflection from Motagua defender Ivan Guerrero.
- Dwayne De Rosario had another glorious chance in the 73rd minute, forcing a difficult save.

Jays continue to own Orioles

It was a lot more of the same for the Toronto Blue Jays against the Baltimore Orioles last night — solid starting pitching, offence to spare, and yet another victory against baseball's worst club.

Ricky Romero allowed two runs over 7⅔ strong innings, Jose Bautista clubbed two more home runs and drove in five runs, and Vernon Wells put the game out of reach with a two-run double in the fourth in an 8-2 romp.

ORIOLES	BLUE JAYS
2	8

There was little drama to entertain the crowd of 16,862 once the Blue Jays (52-49) jumped out to an early lead, but a stunning bit of elan from Yunel Escobar did, however, add some pizzazz to his team's 11th straight win over the Orioles (31-69).

The shortstop ranged far to his left to scoop up Jake Fox's grounder in the fifth inning and, with his momentum carrying him away from the base, spun his glove behind his back and tossed the ball to Aaron Hill at second for a force out. Base-runner Felix Pie could only shake his head.

JIL MCINTOSH/FOR METRO CANADA

▶ Following a new model in 2009, Mitsubishi skipped a year and has now released the 2011 Eclipse Spyder.

Mitsu Eclipse Spyder spins web of wonder

Looking for a drop-dead-gorgeous topless road companion? 2011 Japanese convertible got the looks for a price that won't break your bank

JIL MCINTOSH
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA

I've never figured out why some cultures perform rain dances in dry weather; all they need to do is give me a convertible to drive. My week with the 2011 Mitsubishi Eclipse Spyder included rain every single day, but I braved the sprinkles for the joy of driving with the roof down.

The Spyder has faults, but on a summer's day, it's easy to forgive them once the top stows away. It isn't quite the driver's car that Mitsubishi claims it to be, but it's a good wind-in-your-hair machine.

There's no 2010 model: Its production dates would have released it in the dead of winter, and so Mitsubishi Canada went straight from 2009 to 2011. There are two versions: the GS, at $30,498, uses a 2.4-litre four-cylinder engine, while my tester, the $35,998 GT-P, contains a 3.8-litre V6. Mine used a six-speed manual transmission, while a six-speed automatic can be added for $1,200.

The 265-horsepower V6 is a work of art. It's strong and smooth, with a deliciously throaty exhaust note; the clutch is light, the shifter is precise, and it's simply a joy.

What isn't pleasant is the torque steer, the tendency for a front-wheel-drive car to pull to one side on acceleration. With this much power, the car will all but turn a corner if you're not holding on tight.

An all-wheel system would make a huge difference, and Mitsubishi makes an incredible one that it plugs into its Lancer Evolution, but it would undoubtedly push the car's price out of reach.

The outside is gorgeous, and the inside is too. The heated sport seats are heavily bolstered, and when combined with my tester's orange exterior shade, the interior is three-tone.

Consider this a winding-road sportscar and you may be disappointed; look at it as a drop-dead-gorgeous topless traveller, and you're closer to the mark. Given the prices of some rivals, it's hard to do much better.

The specs

2011 MITSU ECLIPSE SPYDER GT-P

- VEHICLE TYPE Sports convertible
- PRICE $35,998
- ENGINE 3.8-litre V6
- FUEL ECONOMY City 13.1 L/100 km, hwy 8.0 L/100 km, as-tested 11.4 L/100 km
- WARRANTY coverage is always important to buyers, and Mitsubishi offers an especially long one: five years or 100,000 km on almost everything, and an additional ten years or 160,000 km on the powertrain.

Hundreds of Evoque testers descend upon cities

The all-new Range Rover Evoque has entered its final phase of testing, with hundreds of prototype models dispatched around the globe for trial in the toughest climates and conditions.

Land Rover is making no secret of the operation. Its design team has fitted ten prototypes with funky camouflage wraps, to introduce the new car in 10 key cities worldwide.

Ordinarily prototypes are disguised for discretion, but these ten are intended to be seen.

The funky camouflage imagery is actually a GPS mapping trail of ten key cities for Evoque, with each vehicle saying "Hello" to its city. It signals the eagerly awaited global launch of the new Evoque.

▶ A camouflaged Range Rover Evoque.

These vehicles represent London, New York, Sao Paulo, Paris, Milan, Madrid, Berlin, Sydney, Shanghai and Moscow and will all be spotted testing around the globe.

They are just a small proportion of the hundreds of pre-production cars that will be rigorously evaluated over millions of miles to ensure the new Range Rover Evoque surpasses the highest standards of quality and reliability when it goes on sale in summer 2011.

Hood cushion for pedestrians

Volvo front-ends are designed to minimize impact not only on driver, but also pedestrians ◗ Combining rigidity with softness was a challenge

▶ Volvo's pedestrian protection hood is available on the new S80.

DRIVING FORCE

JIL McINTOSH
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA

In a collision between car and pedestrian, it's inevitable: the car will always win. Automakers can't change that, but they are working on designs that will help lessen the degree of injury, such as Volvo's pedestrian protection hood.

"When it comes to hood design, you want to have the hood structure be energy-absorbing," says Thomas Broberg, senior technical adviser of safety for Volvo Cars. "It should have a cushioning effect on the pedestrian."

In any type of collision, absorbing crash energy before it gets to the human body is the key to preventing serious injury. That's why modern cars crumble so spectacularly even in low-speed collisions: they're designed to take the brunt of the crash, rather than the passengers. What's tricky about making a safer hood is that it has to remain stiff enough to open and close properly.

"Hood design is usually two sheets of metal," Broberg says.

"The entire front end of the car is designed for pedestrians. The hood is just one part."
VOLVO'S THOMAS BROBERG

"There's the one you see on the outside, and underneath you usually have a beam structure, which gives the hood stiffness so you can open it, and it won't buckle when you lean on it. What's different with this type of design is that the understructure of the hood isn't rigid beams that crisscross under the hood."

Designing a hood that's safer for pedestrians also means creating space under it. If the hood is too close to the engine, it will deform against it, creating an unyielding hard surface that will cause more serious pedestrian injury.

"We've been working with these kinds of passive countermeasures for years, but the laws of physics are hard to get around. Cars are hard, and people are soft. What we really feel is the way forward in these kinds of situations is to try to avoid the collision in the first place."

EXPLORER NEW CHAPTER IN SUV STORY

The Sport Utility Vehicle, or SUV, is an interesting phenomenon. Before the 1980s, they were uncommon and an acquired taste, like certain foreign cheeses, or the movies of Rainer Werner Fassbinder. During the 1990s they took over the landscape.

In the last decade, they became somewhat vilified and watched helplessly as their devotees changed stripes, and embraced car-based crossovers.

This decade we're seeing the actual vehicles changing stripes. Once proud truck-based SUVs nameplates are now switching over to car-based platforms. Earlier this year we saw Kia Sorrento make the move.

And just this week Ford introduced its new generation Explorer, the first Explorer to go "unibody" and to offer front-wheel-drive versions, in addition to its AWD versions.

The Explorer move is significant, because the nameplate is credited as the major force behind the initial SUV tsunami.

In its first year of production (1990), Explorer sold 14 million units. It helped turn a niche vehicle into the most dominant one of the era.

I think the clearest explanation of why the phenomenon developed back then came from John Rock, once a vice-president of GM. He observed that traditional car buyers at the time "just loved truck-based powertrains."

At Ford Canada's reveal of the 2011 Explorer, I caught up with Paul F. Roy, the company's marketing director.

He noted that current customers are not hung up on which vehicle is body-on-frame or unibody; they're more interested in what the vehicle can do, than the nature of its construction.

He added that Explorer is a name that continues to resonate, and there is a swath of buyers who prefer the more, rugged SUV vibe. They just want that vibe in a more fuel-efficient and sophisticated package.

So now we have another niche — a car-based crossover that's trying to channel some old-school truck-based SUV mojo. At first I thought, "naw, doesn't feel right." Now I'm thinking, "why the hell not?"

METRO

Light duty, heavy electric

FORECAST By 2016, that postal delivery van that brings in your mail may just be running on electricity. Sales of light-duty electric vehicles — such as parcel vans, small shuttle buses — are expected to explode in the next six years, according to a new study by global research firm Frost & Sullivan. "Here in Canada, driven by rising energy prices and strengthening emission regulations, companies whose truck fleets routinely travel through congested areas in urban regions are showing increasing levels of interest in electric vehicles," said Sandeep Kar, Frost & Sullivan's global program manager for commercial vehicle research.

Tough car Sorento a family favourite

If weekend adventures are your thing, Kia's SUV can be an ideal driving companion ◆ Relatively worry-free model offers more value for less

SECOND GEAR

JUSTIN PRITCHARD
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA

Like it or not, some Canadian families simply need the ruggedness, capability and power served up by a 4x4 SUV. If your family requires one such model to tow a boat, tackle the cottage trail or access weekend adventures via uncharted territory, there are several worthy options to consider in the used market.

The new Sorento is now on sale at Kia dealerships, leaving the former value-priced model in the used market with a praised ladder-frame structure and real 4x4 transfer case with low-range gearing. These two attributes form the basis for real-world sport ute toughness that gear the Sorento towards a shopper actually planning to work their machine a little with some towing or off-roading.

Sorento was powered by one of several V6 engines. Earlier models got a 3.5 litre unit with 192 horsepower, while a 3.8 litre, 262 horsepower V6 was also available. Later in the Sorento's life, a 3.3 litre, 242-horsepower engine joined the lineup, and shoppers can look for a four or five-speed automatic, as well as the rarer five-speed manual transmission.

What Owners Like

Value, equipment levels and styling are rated highly by last-generation Sorento owners, as are a safe and confident driving feel that comes as part of a tall height and solid ride. Fit and finish were also praised, as were good steering and acceleration.

What Owners Hate

Standard 4x4 complaints regarding fuel mileage top the list of last-generation Sorento owner gripes, with a "thin" paint job and some interior noises and rattles following behind.

Common issues

Shoppers test-driving a used Sorento are advised to check that the 4x4 system shifts in and out of its various modes as expected, thus ensuring an expensive actuator within the transfer case isn't malfunctioning.

Models with a manual transmission should shift smoothly with no grinding, clunking or clutch slippage. Ask a mechanic for help if you have any concerns.

A check beneath the used Sorento for signs of damage, rust or fluid leaks should be considered mandatory, too. If the vehicle's former owner incurred any damage during an off-road mishap, you'll want to find out about it before handing over your cash.

Why did you choose the Odyssey?
I have three children (11, five and four years old) and I test drove a few minivans before choosing this one. Honda's a very reliable car; she's just beautiful. I use her a lot to ferry the kids around and to drive between cities when I'm performing. She has a lot of room but drives just like a car. She has an amazing sound system. I warm up in the van all the time. Actually, as funny as it sounds, I'm more comfortable singing on my own in the car or when I'm drying my hair than in front of an audience. I get stage fright (laughs).

What type of driver are you?
My son calls me the best driver in the world, second to my father, who taught me how to drive. I'm not aggressive, definitely defensive. I'm always very safe. We've taken lots of road trips with the kids across North America so they've seen almost everything on this continent.

What is your dream car?
An Audi! An Audi A4 convertible please! I haven't thought of a colour yet though. Something on the lighter side. Or, if I went dark with the exterior, I'd go light with the interior.

What would we find in your glove compartment?
You'd find an extra pair of glasses for my daughter in case her pair breaks because with kids accidents happen. You'd find an instruction manual for the car, insurance papers, the registration, a couple of napkins in case of a spill, a couple of little toys and gadgets for the kids and at least one pen. All very practical (laughs).

MA ANNE DIONISIO

- WHO SHE IS
  Ma-Anne Dionisio is a Manila-born, Canadian singer and actress currently starring in Miss Saigon (a role she first played in the original Toronto production back in 1993) as Kim. Since 1993, she has toured with Miss Saigon all over the world and is now on the Toronto stage once again until Aug. 1 at the Four Seasons Centre for the Performing Arts.
- WHAT SHE DRIVES
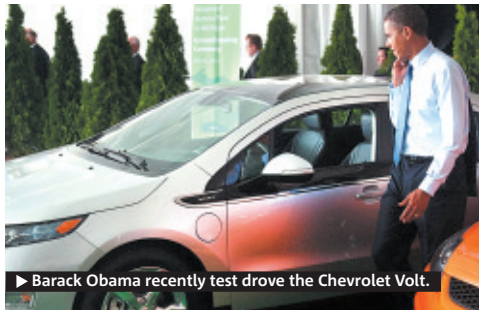
  A 2007 golden-coloured Honda Odyssey "we call Her Majesty because she's a queen (laughs)."



▶ Barack Obama recently test drove the Chevrolet Volt.

President takes charge of Volt

U.S. President Barack Obama got his first exposure and seat time earlier this month in the Chevrolet Volt electric vehicle with extended range capability during a visit to the Compact Power battery plant in Holland, Mich.

LG Chem, the parent of Compact Power, is making the battery cells for the Volt, which goes on sale late this year.

The Volt has a range of about 340 miles and is powered with electricity at all times.

For up to the first 40 miles, the Volt is powered solely by electricity stored in its 16-kWh lithium-ion battery, using no fuel and producing no emissions. When the Volt's lithium-ion battery runs low, an engine/generator seamlessly operates to extend the driving range another 300 miles (482 km) on a full tank of gas.

FROM CARGUIDE

All about the battery

WARRANTY. The Chevrolet Volt electric vehicle with extended range will provide customers with an unprecedented, standard, eight-year/100,000-mile warranty on its advanced, lithium-ion battery.

GM claims it is the industry's longest, most comprehensive battery warranty for an electric vehicle, and is transferable at no cost to other vehicle owners.

The Volt's comprehensive battery warranty covers all 161 battery components, 95 per cent of which are designed and engineered by GM.

LOVE HAKIM!

I just wanted to thank you for all your time and patience with me. And thank you for the 4 wonderful years hopefully we get to continue to be with each other for the years to come.
ME

Cynthia, I had given up hope before you came into my life; you are the most wonderful woman I have ever known, and I will go with you to the end of the line.
MARTIN

Jaan, I sit here and try to think of all the words to describe how I feel and what you mean to me, but all I can think of is as simple as this. I love you. I always have and I always will no matter what comes.

Today's horoscope

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca

♈ Aries March 21-April 19 This is potentially one of the best times of the year for you, so don't waste it. What happens today will cheer you up no end but you should not be feeling down anyway.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 21 You have been so busy of late that you may have neglected some of the people you love, so make it your aim today to remind partners and family members how much you care.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 Forget about money worries and work problems and make it your aim to have fun. If what you are doing does not bring a smile to your face then either you are doing it wrong or you should not be doing it at all.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 You have to get serious about your cash flow situation. You can still have fun but it must be the kind of fun that does not cost you an arm and a leg.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 Forget about what happened earlier in the year and strive to make the next few weeks truly special. You cannot change the past but you can redeem it by making the future memorable — and the future starts right now.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 The Sun's transit of the most sensitive area of your chart makes this a difficult time for you, but not so difficult that you have to walk around with such a long face. Cheer up, it's life, and it's still pretty good.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 You can, if you wish, sit back and do nothing today but if you spend time with your friends you will not only feel relaxed but you will feel as if you have done something productive as well.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 You will be put to the test over the next few days, so prepare yourself mentally and get plenty of rest as well. Your mind and your body need to be at their peak.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 Expand your horizons and break out of the rut you have been living in these past few months. You have done what was expected of you and now you have every right to reward yourself.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 You may not want others to know that you are in difficulties but if you don't speak up how are you going to get help?

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20 Changes to your schedule, both at home and at work, will have to be made eventually, so why not make them now? You have been pushing yourself a bit too hard. Go easier on yourself today and tomorrow.
